LANGUAGE LAB: ESPERANTO

Esperanto is a language that was invented in the 1880s by a Polish ophthalmologist, became a fad in the 1950s, and today has between ten thousand and two million speakers worldwide. Esperanto's main feature is that it is extremely easy to learn, taking as little as a tenth the time to achieve fluency as any other language. It has a very regular syntax with no variation, and a small but extensible vocabulary made up of guessable root words and a Turing-complete Swiss army collection of affixes. Hundo: dog. Fihundo: dirty dog. Fihundeje: like a place of/for dirty dogs. Lin fihundejilis: they were implements of dirtydog-housing / their use was as a tool that dirtydog-housed. The pronunciation is also very regular, plus lifting and futuristic.

Contrary to popular belief, Esperanto was neither designed nor intended to be a universal language that would replace other national languages. Rather, it was developed to be an international auxiliary language: a politically neutral language, easily picked up, for reasons of trade, travel and universal peace harmony vibration. This is not yet catching on, so why pay any attention other than to talk about it as laughing stock, a lefty-dreamy nonsense fake-world woo woo village that not enough people will ever cosign so why bother?

One practical late-game aftermarket use for Esperanto is as a gateway language. In a recent study, students who studied Esperanto for 1 year followed by French or Spanish for 3 achieved a greater fluency (in French or Spanish) than students who studied just those languages for the full 4 years. Because it is so easy to learn, Esperanto could function as a sort of second language training wheels, helping the mind learn how to learn another language. With this practical consideration in mind, I think continued study of Esperanto is: reasonable, while at the same time being: goofy, which is to say: smart in a weird way, stupid in a fun way.

ESPERANTO CULTURE

Esperanto has between 200 and 1,000 "native" speakers- children whose parents' shared language is Esperanto. The most famous is financier George Soros.

There are a great number of books, magazines, and songs in Esperanto, but unfortunately many are like HAM radio or ska music, in that they only talk about how great the way they're communicating is. There are lots of English-language classics translated into Esperanto, like La Aventuroj de Alicio en Mirlando, Robinsono Kruso, Doktoro Jekyll kaj Sinjoro Hyde, and La Falo de Ušero-Domo.

Esperanto is occasionally used by artists who want to seem unplaceably foreign. The best example of this is the infamous movie "INCUBUS" starring William Shatner, but it was also used in (among other things) Chaplin's brilliant "Great Dictator", "Blade: Trinity", the TV show "Red Dwarf", and the Sonic Youth / Jim O'Rourke album "Invito Al Cielo".

so let's practice- how would you say "Go helicopter, you hateable strawberry!"? that's right, it's "Helikoptero, frageō!"! you did a good job! ok, here are some expressions that might come in handy:
flood of cocktails: "koktalinundo"
shit-flautist : "fekflutisto" (compare with "flautist of shit", "feka flautisto") very ghosty : "fantomega"

Use the chart on the right to come up with more words and expressions. if you're interested in learning more about Esperanto, consult your local library or go to <http://www.esperanto-usa.org/> or <http://www.learnu.net/>.

SCENE REPORT!

The International Congress on Invertebrate Morphology
by Sophie Tintori

The ICIM is a triennial, week-long meeting. Here are my minutes from the comparative embryology day (my jam) of this year's meeting.

The congress assembles in front of a projection screen in the basement of a building in Cambridge. No more than 100 people fill the room. Camera flashes explode from amped scientists in the audience literally the whole day.

During his talk, the first presenter makes a wisecrack about ectomesoderm, which is hilarious, because it's not even a thing! Everyone laughs because the joke is actually about how absurd their own lives are.

A HEATED argument breaks out about whether phoronids (animals that looks like a strip of fringe rolled in a tube and implanted in sea muck) have radial or spiral cleavage. German group says spiral, Russian group says radial. A scientist from Hawaii in the front row tells the German presenter that he doesn't think the German guy would recognize radial cleavage if he saw it! Some gasp, some laugh.

In a wild twist, the Russian presenter, who looks as if she is about to cry, comes back instead with a real 'I know who I am and you can go fuck yourself' for a German dude in the audience who is trying to talk down.

By my score card, the Russian lady wins in the style category, for being 6'6", super blond, super tan, green nail polish, giving a talk in a language she definitely can't speak (with only one break for a deep, deep breath), being super pumped to be at the congress and to be studying biology, and having a wicked defiant attitude amidst a bunch of dudes who are (a) all friends and (b) love to argue.

On the phoronid cleavage front, the jury's still out. Needs more data.

40% of presenters are wearing Hawaiian shirts, which every one feels pretty good about.

Happy to report that after 350 years, drawings of one cell dividing into two still look like a juicy pair of butt cheeks.

As a keynote, the final talk is given by Reinhardt Kristensen, the real-life Steve Zissou. He shows pictures of his boat, and his collection sites in Greenland, and discusses the three phyla he has discovered. Reinhardt shows breathtaking pictures of a species he has recently found that is two tenths of a millimeter wide and looks like the inside of a kaleidoscope. Flash bulbs continue popping.

Next: awards! The Crustacean Society gives its annual Crustacean Society Excellence in Research Award. This year it goes to a nice man from Berlin named Gerard. He takes the stage, and graciously thanks all the crustaceans.

The Congress ends with the old president of the International Society for Invertebrate Morphology hugging the new president, and then the new president saying a few words and hugging the old president again.

I had a blast this year, thanks guys! See you in Berlin in 2014!

Send us your scene report!

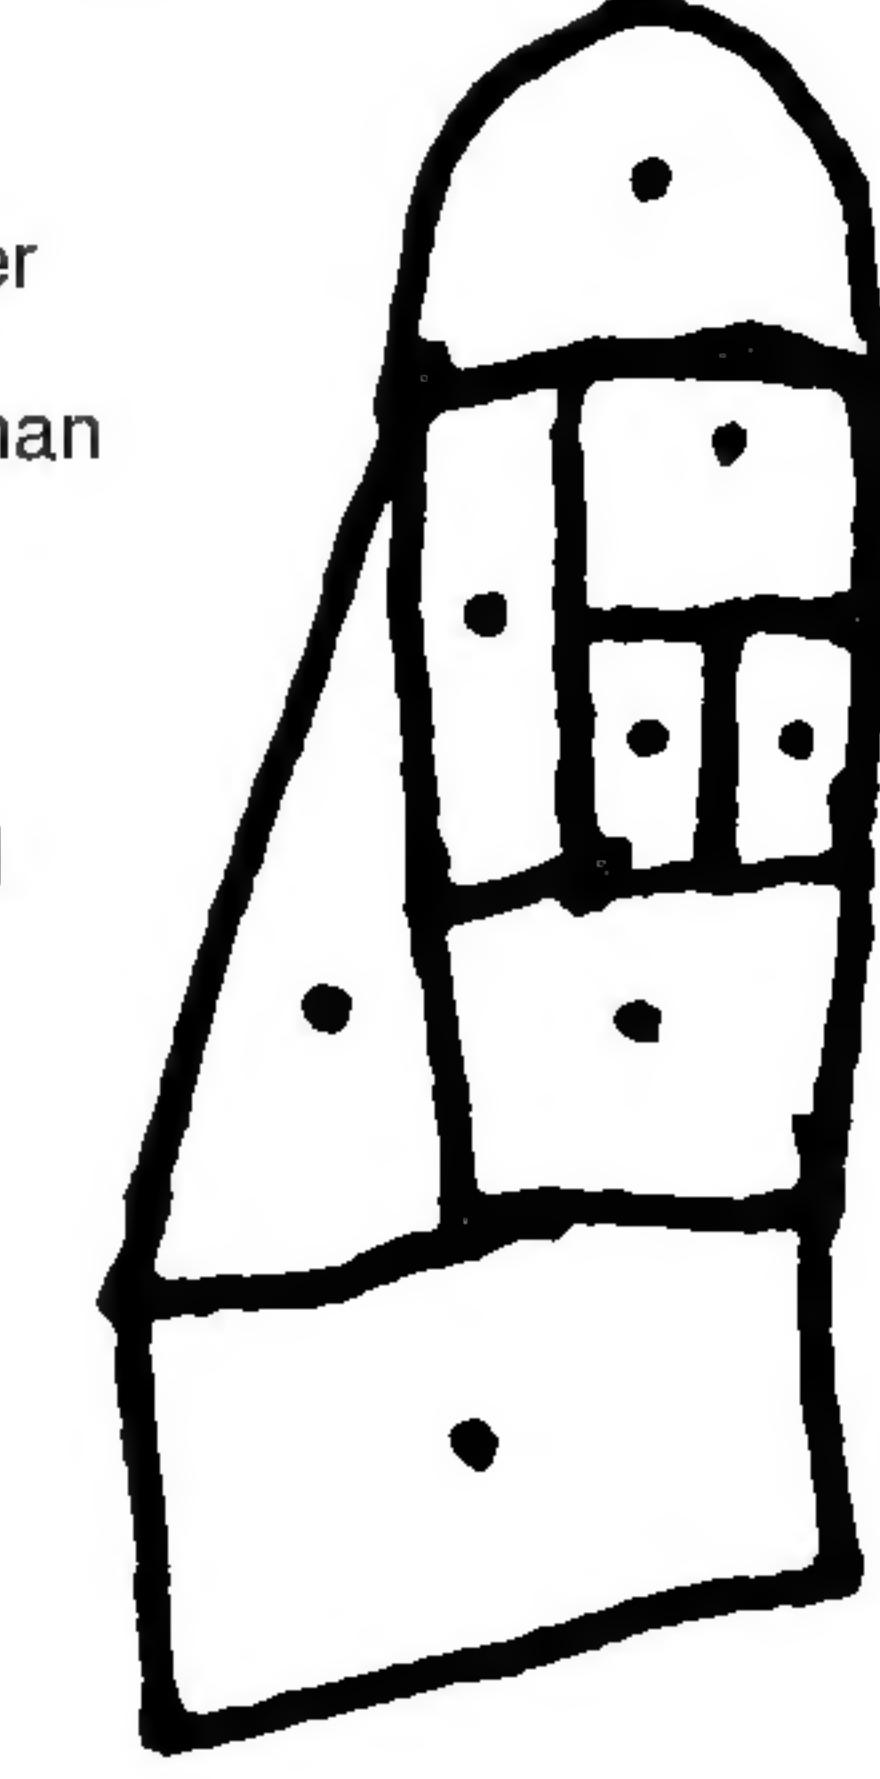

Esperanto's Lego-like nature allows for a lot of flexibility and creativity. Here is a pronunciation guide and a shortlist of some roots, prefixes, and suffixes to get you started! try making swear words or band names.

Pronunciation is always on the second-to-last syllable. "j" makes a "y" sound. there are a few funny accents on letters- ĉ is a "ch" sound, ĝ is a "j" sound, ŝ is a "sh" sound, and ĵ is a "zh" sound. G is always hard, like Gary (what up, Gary!).

Words are listed in their noun forms (ending in "o").

kadavr/o : cadaver
helikoptero : helicopter
koktalo : cocktail
vojrabisto : highwayman
kobold/o : hobgoblin krabro : hornet
plumar/o : plumage
dom/o : house
krucplakaj/o : plywood
ing/o : sheath
frag/o : strawberry
epitom/o : epitomy inund/o : flood flutist/o : flautist
fek/o : shit
agres/o : aggression
glut/o : blob
anas/o : duck
trudherb/o : weed
fantom/o : ghost

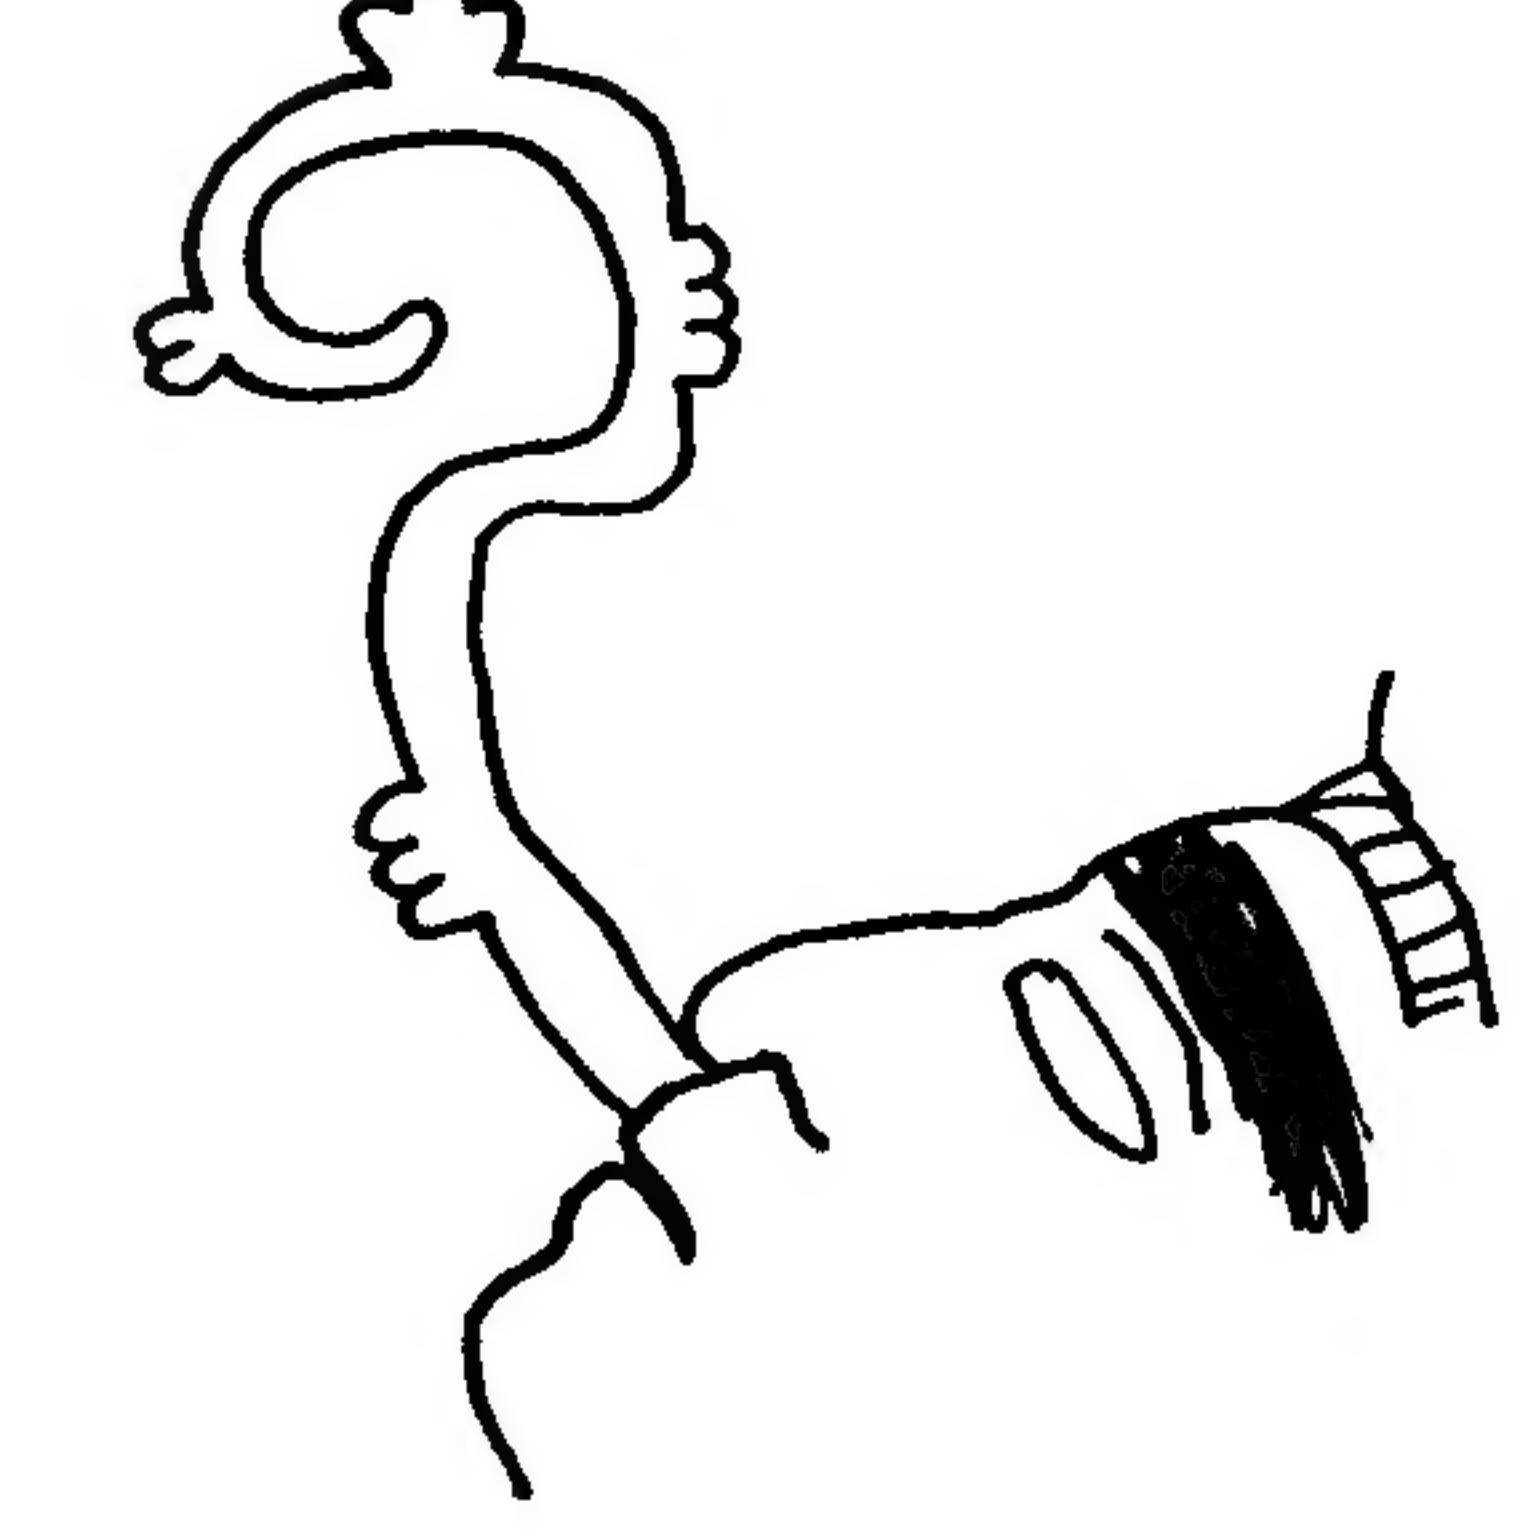

A FEW GRAMMATICAL ENDINGS

-a : adjective (kadavra : cadaver-y)
-as : verb, present tense
-e : adverb (li koboldas krabri : they is hobgobbling hornetly)
-i : verb, infinitive (epitomi : to epitomize)
-is : verb past tense
-j : plural
-os : verb, future tense
-u : verb, imperative

A FEW SUFFIXES (after the root and before the ending)

-aĉ : disparagement (domaĉo : hovel)
-eg : augmentative
-ej : place allotted to or characterized by
-er : piece of a whole
-et : diminutive
-uj : container
-ul : person

MOTHERS TOP TEN

in no order

1. COUNTRY RADIO - In the same way that everything is crazy, country radio right now is crazy. Almost nothing matters, and pretty much anything can be a country song if it has certain signifiers. Modern country is cool because songs are about a wide variety of things. I tuned in the other day and there was a song about LISTENING to the song "Margaritaville" and being like "ohhhh yeahhhh". Identify with that! Of course my favorite radio station is still "in the supermarket".

2. NEW DON KNOTTS - Hey you heard it here first, there's a new Don Knotts. I wouldn't have believed it if i didn't see it with my own eyes, but the new Don Knotts is 20 years old, black, lesbian, and from Philadelphia PA. Spotted in a production of Antony and Cleopatra, she had that perfect Don Knotts 110% Boner Of Disbelief face. A serious wig twister!

3. COMMUNITY MUSIC WORKS EXPERIMENTAL STRING CONCERT - especially Scott "Work/Death" Reber's piece for mixed ability triple quartet- 4 studied adults and 8 kids! Pretty perfect, i was like :,)

4. BEATING MCSHANE AT PING PONG - Granted buddy won the first game, and by a larger margin, but close-squeaked and more recent wins are the important ones right? I can't wait to wear my championship belt to prestigious events (PS- McShane, I made a championship belt).

5. PIERRE HENRY - some perfect musique concrete right here, very choice. Not to be confused with Pierre Schaeffer, aka P Shifty, who he co-produced some hits with. Good for all times of the day or night.

6. NUTRAGENA T-GEL SHAMPOO - remember when Worf did the voiceover on the commercial for this and it was a perfect vibe alignment of sound, smell, color, translucency, viscosity, and tingle? Well I hadn't smelled this shampoo in years, but the other day I realized that 1., I still like the smell of this shampoo, 2., I don't like the smell of the subway, and 3., this shampoo smells (a little) like the subway. It's a weird feeling, like being on the brink of a revelation that is presently totally foreign and unthinkable.

7. CAPITALIZING EVERY FIRST LETTER OF EVERY WORD - You Wouldn't Want To Read A Book Like This, But Sometimes Someone Caps This Way And It's A Nice Feeling, Like, Almost Like A Church Feeling.

8. "MY PRAYER" by the PLATTERS

9. THE PIANO SEQUENCE FROM "THE BIG STORE"- Chico and Harpo doing comedy that only human brothers can do. This is... extremely touching...

10. FIREWORKS

MOTHERS TOP TEN OPPOSITE DAY

BIO: DJ SCREW

DJ Screw was born Robert Earl Davis Jr., on July 20, 1971. He was the main music mixer for the Screwed Up Click and a mainstay of the Houston hip hop scene. Screw music, a type of rap music with heavy bass and "a languid, eerie quality" is named for him. He died of a codeine overdose on November 16, 2000.

Screw music consists of slowwwwwed down hip hop records. Period. A simple innovation that up to that point was too right there to do, but when you're sweating at night in a car inching along a street, sitting massively low, barely even three dimensional, swerving from side to side, this is the most perfect music. You are a puddle. The music is a molasses drip. That you. Can really. Nod. Your head to. DJ Screw produced hundreds of tapes (TAPES) and on "a regular day" sold 150 of them out of his house, where people would drive for miles just to line up outside of. Tapes. "When you're in the studio smoking weed, you don't want to be ripping and running...". A good line might get pulled back, played over and over again. "So you can hear it". The tapes echo damply. Time slides a thin drop condensed off of a styrofoam cup. The cup is sweating in a large manicured hand.

SOURCE WALL is a randomly generated table of 144 alphabetic characters. There are many different ways to use such a table- you could use it to select a random password, you could use it to create a month-long cipher solvable only by others with access to this issue of Mothers News (tinyurl.com/B8J8G10C4F8G4), you could search for words and near-words that may be relevant to your life, you can use it to select a new name-- there are literally infinite methods of use. For disbelievers in astrology who see the benefit of being guided by a truly random block of text assigned to a specific time period, SOURCE WALL may prove especially useful.

SOURCE WALL expresses true randomness as derived from atmospheric noise, not the pseudorandomness that is created by many so-called random number generators. GOSSIP SECTION

by Josephine Mendes

YAAAAAAAAAAA the gossip section... How you been? How's your buddy or something? Good... Jump right in... THE BODY went on tour with ASSEMBLY OF LIGHT CHOIR last month, so there's 1/3 less gossip in this town, I'm going to try to go through... The WITCH CLUB had a diner-themed benefit to raise money for a sound system. I went there with NICK PEBBLE and got a omelette it was nice. Except I got jack cheese on the 'mlette, just to make dude grouchy, but it made my stomach grouchy too, I shoulda seen that coming... Speaking of witches, CEMETARY MARY is still holding it down out with her apothecary out there, you should go out there and get a tincture, get your body right. What's a tincture? A tincture is when you take an herb or something and soak it in vodka for a long time. They're good for different things, but you gotta get someone to set you up with a set that's good for you or its no good. Usually you just take a dropperful, but if you have a lot of tinctures around, that's how witches party. Uh, actually witches party way crazier than that, but that's how witches pre-game... Hey the other day me and LAUREN FISSURE went to a burger place, Lauren asked for water that wasn't bottled they said no can do. So she got a glass of ice and WAITED!!!! Speaking of radiant energy I saw my girl EMMY BRIGHT in the street the other day, straight up it was like seeing JACKIE O that lady's so radiant you could like put a wet mitten on her and ten later its dry... TRUE... TOM B.U.B.U.L. (Be U Be Universe Love) is camp counseling all Summer and texted me this exchange he had with a camper (who always had a backpack with them): "Why the backpack" "To be prepared" "But what's in it" "...I don't remember" "Let's look?" "...It might just be a stuffed animal". Apparently it was a super cute stuffed animal of a dog and nothing else... And speaking of "and nothing else", MINDY STARKS is in the running for joke of the year for "who does your hair", to MUFFY, in re: extremely short skirt. That's where I'm at... Uh oh, frownface- EMILY BLOODMILK is closing down her bakery... Blame the paleo diet... Emily came out to Barf City the other day and we got "Fuck It" Bloody Marys (her signature drink) at Verizon Brewery, it was a pretty poz experience... I'm still confused as to what time you're supposed to drink these except "on an airplane", but whatever whatever it was good. Homegirl said in Minneapolis a Bloody Mary has celery, olives, lemon wedge, lime wedge, pickle spear, and AROUND THE PICKLE SPEAR is a slice of prosciutto, and daubed ON TOP of the prosciutto is cream cheese, AND it comes with a short beer chaser STANDARD, and vegan variant is "WIDELY" available. That's some Unchartered Realmz right there... Peace, Blood... The other day I had a dream I ate RUM RAISIN ICE CREAM... I've never eaten that kind of ice cream in my life... I had a dream someone was talking about HERBIE HANCOCK and I decided not to comment... Maybe that happened, can't remember... Have you seen the "Rock it" video? It's a traditional nightmare... Hey speaking of things that happen at night I heard EMILY SHIWANNA keeps a tiny bottle of A1 sauce in her purse and when she goes to bars she puts 3 drops of it in red wine. Is that a thing people do? Jury's still out... Oh, and my jewelery is still out too- Emily I need that necklace back, it's good luck and I'm trying to get a parking ticket untied in the middle of the month... next month... Hey I saw ZOYA at Roger Williams park yelling at a horse that was there for some reason. ELI THE BEAST can back me up, he was there playing sports. Why the horse was there I do not know... It was weird... New names for Summer: DAVY HARMS: "Hot Hands"; TINTO: "Foot Bone"; FORGE: "Turtle". These names are Summer only, once it hits Autumn we tear the page off the calendar... Are you supposed to capitalize "Summer"? It looks weird, like, too formal. Unbutton that word's shirt a button or two... Best dressed this month (meaning the month of July, this is a premonition): SHERYL ANN. Everyone else- GOOD LUCK!
